

Nightfall.

Cry, cry for the World
Cry for the mountains
Cry for the sea
With all your loving heart
Your gentle arms with me.

Love, love the oceans
Love the comfort of my voice
Love this Earth blue-white in space
The pearly dew of morning
As tears shine on your face.

Breathe, breathe breath of life
Breathe on my pillow
Breathe with your mirth
From dawn-lit newborn futures
This crying of your birth.

Grow, grow like the oak
Grow like the wheatfields
Grow like the day
Love lifetimes again
Feel summer sunshine
Before winter's rain.

Work, work until sunset
Work streets by nightfall
Work amongst sewer-life
Destroy the verminous
Speeding by underground
Last step the terminus.

Time, time has reached her ending
Time has withered me
Time binds me in wonder
Pictures of her smooth young hair
From silent movies
Haunt my chair.

Believe, believe my grieving hope
Believe her peaceful voice
Believe my parting sigh
To beauty of the heavens
With your caress I lie.

Cry, cry for the World
Cry for the mountains
Cry for the sea
With all your loving heart
Your gentle kiss with me.
